

Cancer changes lives...so do WE!

The Ulman Cancer Fund for Young Adults
2012 Annual Report

a message from the president

Growing Our Community of Support

No young adult should have to face cancer alone. This mantra drives everything we do at the Ulman Cancer Fund for Young Adults (UCF). As we share our 2012 Annual Report, we are inspired and grateful. Inspired by how much we've accomplished both in 2012 and our fifteen-year history, and grateful for the support and generosity each of you has given UCF to help us get to where we are today. Quite simply, without each of you, we would not be able to build our community of support that changes thousands of lives every year.

This report highlights many of the remarkable people whose lives we touched and moments we were fortunate to experience in 2012. We reached communities across the country through programs like 4K for Cancer and our College Scholarship program. We built new partnerships and strengthened existing ones by offering patient navigation at our nation's top cancer centers, including Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center and University of Maryland Greenebaum Cancer Center. We engaged hundreds of young adults in the fight through new initiatives like our Board of Young Adult Advisors and Helping Others Fight. And we activated cancer survivors in ways that many of them never imagined through Cancer to 5K and the Rev3 Run Across America.

An excerpt from my blog during the Run Across America reflects the generosity, sacrifice, and dedication that all of you bring to our mission.

April 7, 2012

Tomorrow (Easter Sunday) marks the first and only day of rest (sort of) for the Run Across America team. I say sort of because they actually have to run 14 miles tomorrow to stay on pace for their April 16th arrival in Washington, DC.

In our dedication circle this morning before our run, Charlie Patten, Jr. (the President of Rev3 Triathlon) dedicated his run to a statistic I had shared with the team earlier that week – "I dedicate our run today to the 8 young adults that will be diagnosed with cancer every hour we run today."

I thought to myself, those words are powerful. Here is this guy who has a wife and three young kids at home he hasn't seen in weeks. And it's the day before Easter and he's in the middle of nowhere in a dirt field in Oklahoma - and he's dedicating his next 24 hours and the 20+ miles he'll be running to eight young adults he doesn't even know who will be diagnosed with cancer in our country. Wow – that's selfless and downright inspiring.

The Rev3 Run Across America is about a lot of things, but the one thing that sunk in to me over the past three days is that this epic journey is about generosity and building a community of support. This group of runners and support staff are going extraordinary lengths to fight this disease and make a difference in communities across the country.

Whether you ran across the country, made a donation, volunteered your time, or participated in one of our many engagement programs, we could not have changed lives without you. We are proud to share this Annual Report with you as it evidences the impact you had in 2012. With your support, we look forward to changing even more lives in 2013 and beyond.

Cancer changes lives...so do WE!

Brock Yetso
President & CEO

how we change lives

A leading voice in the young adult cancer movement, we are working at a grassroots level to support, educate, connect, and empower young adult cancer survivors. Since inception in 1997, we have been working tirelessly at both the community level and with our national partners to raise awareness of the young adult cancer issue and ensure that all young adults and families impacted by cancer have a voice and the resources necessary to thrive.

{our mission}

We enhance lives by supporting, educating, and connecting young adults, and their loved ones, affected by cancer.

{our vision}

We envision a world in which all young adults affected by cancer will have the access to resources necessary to thrive.

{our programs & services}

PATIENT NAVIGATION UCF Patient Navigation improves the ability of young adults to manage their own cancer experiences and long-term survival. In 2012, this program was offered through the UCF offices and at University of Maryland Greenebaum Cancer Center, Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center, and GBMC Sandra and Malcolm Berman Cancer Institute.

CANCER TO 5K A free, 12-week training program designed to introduce or reintroduce cancer survivors to physical activity by providing them with the engagement, guidance, and support necessary to complete a 5K-distance road race.

HELPING OTHERS FIGHT Working towards our goal of ensuring that no young adult faces cancer alone, Helping Others Fight participants directly support local cancer patients and their families through volunteer service and companionship.

NATIONAL COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM These competitive awards support the financial needs of young adults whose lives have been impacted by cancer and are seeking higher education. We awarded 16 scholarships in 2012.

THE BOARD OF YOUNG ADULT ADVISORS (BOYAA) The Board of Young Adult Advisors is a group of active, passionate young adults working to support their peers impacted by cancer through philanthropy, community outreach, exciting events, and unique volunteer service.

TEAM FIGHT AWARENESS PROGRAM Since 2006, Team Fight has created a community of support and activated over 3,000 individuals to train together for a running event or triathlon and raise awareness of the young adult cancer fight.

HALF FULL TRIATHLON This UCF event raises significant awareness and money for young adult cancer support and mobilizes thousands of people locally and nationally around the young adult cancer fight.

4K FOR CANCER The 4K for Cancer program is dedicated to empowering young adults in uniting communities across the country in the fight against cancer through community service and support.

4K For Cancer Riders Cycle, Inspire & Unite

- 88 young adults spent 70 days cycling 4,000 miles to raise funds and awareness in the fight against young adult cancer
- 3 routes, participants finished their rides in Seattle, WA, Portland, OR, or San Francisco, CA
- $483,832 raised by the cyclists, who also performed community service and awarded college scholarships to young adult cancer survivors across the country

"The 4K has been a life-altering journey. At every turn we were able to affirm life and dedicate ourselves to making a difference in the communities we passed through. We saw first-hand how cancer has affected people equally from coast to coast, and we also saw people's resilience in the face of tragedy."

- Doug Bafford, Seattle Ride

2012 Scholarship Program - Changing Lives Coast to Coast

In 2012, UCF awarded college scholarships to 16 deserving young adults whose lives have been impacted by cancer and who are pursuing higher education. To date, UCF has awarded over $500,000 in college scholarships to young adults in all 50 states.

A group of nine young adults are posing in a yard. In the background, a large, leafless tree stands against a cloudy sky. To the left, there is a large bush with bright red autumn leaves. In the foreground, a large pile of black plastic trash bags and cardboard boxes is visible. The group consists of five men standing in the back row and four men sitting or kneeling in the front row. They are wearing casual clothing, including t-shirts, hoodies, and jeans. Some of the t-shirts have "TOWSON" and "RUGBY" printed on them. A dark-colored car is parked on the right side of the image.

"Helping Others Fight does just that. The help they provided us, which ranged from yard clean up to construction, allowed us the freedom to fight the toughest battle we have faced yet. Thank you for making our lives easier inw the midst of such challenges!"
-Kathy Oliver, mother of young adult cancer survivor

BOYAA Encourages Community Outreach and Service

UCF launched its Board of Young Adult Advisors (BOYAA) in 2012 to foster a culture of leadership, service, advocacy, and cooperation among young professionals aged 21-40 who are passionate about UCF's mission. BOYAA members serve for one year and participate in community outreach, volunteer service, event planning, fundraising, an education about young adult cancer issues.

Helping Others Fight Provides Direct Support and Companionship

Helping Others Fight was founded in 2012 to directly support local cancer patients and their families through volunteer service and companionship. Being a part of Helping Others Fight gives volunteers an opportunity to provide cancer patients with a sense of normalcy during and after treatment. From June to December 2012, dozens of Helping Others Fight volunteers participated in service projects that helped local families affected by cancer. Ten companies and individuals also donated over $3,500 in goods and services to Helping Others Fight projects.

Volunteer activities include:

- yard work & home repairs
- household chores & cleaning
- pet care
- running errands
- meal preparation & delivery
- chemotherapy companion
- delivery of Chemo Care Bags

Ensuring No Young Adult Faces Cancer Alone

ensuring no young adult faces cancer alone

Patient Navigation Program Launches at Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center

UCF's Patient Navigation program assists young adults with cancer in making informed decisions about their treatment options by offering individual and group support and connecting them to educational, psychosocial, practical, and financial resources. In February 2012, UCF launched a new Adolescent and Young Adult Patient Navigation Program at Johns Hopkins Sydney Kimmel Comprehensive Cancer Center in Baltimore, MD. Overseeing the program at Hopkins is Patient Navigator Alexandra Gubin, MSW, LGSW. In her first year, Ms. Gubin facilitated the creation of a multi-disciplinary team of physicians, nurses, and social workers to create a fertility preservation protocol.

"The Ulman Patient Navigator Program is an essential component to our commitment to survivorship issues."
- Kimmel Cancer Center Director William G. Nelson, M.D., Ph.D.

500 face-to-face patient interactions

$1,000+ in UCF funding provided to families for food, transportation, and fertility preservation-related expenses

Support Group Launched to Support Children of Young Adult Patients

In the Spring of 2012, thanks to a grant from the Marion I. & Henry J. Knott Foundation, UCF began a support program for children whose parent (or grandparent/guardian/significant adult) was undergoing cancer treatment or in remission/early survivorship. Using the CLIMB Model (Children's Lives Include Moments of Bravery), this free program was offered at the University of Maryland Greenebaum Cancer Center but open to all families in the Baltimore area. Children met in a small group and engaged in activities related to the "feeling of the week," such as the anger cube, sad/happy masks, and strong box. Adults met in a separate group and discussed the challenges of supporting children through an adult loved one's cancer experience.

Getting Active In the Fight Against Cancer

"Thanks to this training program, I was able to do something that I've never been able to do before... I never had the desire to even try to run a 5K; it seemed so unattainable. But now..."

- Erin Price, breast cancer survivor & Spring 2012 finisher

Cancer to 5K Reaches More Cancer Survivors

In 2012, we offered group workout programs in Baltimore, Howard County, Washington D.C., and Northern Virginia, and an “at home” training program to survivors across the country. Twenty cancer survivors completed 5K races in 2012 and some did more than one. Our survivors were coached and supported by an amazing group of volunteers who were with them every step of the way.

“The other survivors inspire me. The support, knowledge, and encouragement of the coaches and volunteers is amazing. They have all had a wonderful impact on my life. They helped me take my life back from cancer – physically, mentally, and emotionally. In my case, the cancer may reoccur. If it does, I am in the best shape of my adult life and plan to keep that up...I would recommend this organization to any young adult facing the challenges that cancer brings.”

UCF Rev3 Half Full Triathlon Engages College Athletes in the Fight and Celebrates Survivorship

We believe Half Full means having hope and optimism in the face of adversity. Whether it is a triathlon or the fight against cancer, Half Full is having the determination and positive attitude to get to your finish line.

In 2012, more than 65 survivors and 200 college athletes participated in the UCF Rev3 Half Full Triathlon.

The UCF Rev3 Half Full Triathlon was chosen as the Championship for the Mid-Atlantic Collegiate Triathlon Conference (MACTC) 2012-13 Race Series. Over 200 MACTC athletes had the unique opportunity to race alongside professional triathletes and compete against the best in the sport.

"Being a part of Rev3's Run Across America for the Ulman Cancer Fund has been a pretty awesome experience in every way possible."

"Our organization's ability to successfully fulfill our mission is 100% dependent on our amazing partnerships. Our partners expand our footprint in the communities we serve and help us generate critical funds necessary to sustain and grow our direct patient services and broaden our community of support!"

- Brock Yetso, CEO

Why Michael Kloosterman Ran...

During my endeavor to run 10 marathons, in 10 states, while raising at least $10,000 for UCF last year I was asked several times to briefly describe what TEAM FIGHT means to me and honestly it's hard to be brief... but the word that comes to mind is SUPPORT. Support from start to finish. Support defines what the Ulman Cancer Fund and TEAM FIGHT are all about and they personify it daily in their mission and actions. I have seen it first hand with Cancer to 5K, a survivorship program that enabled a young lady to complete a 5K while actively undergoing cancer treatments. I have experienced it first hand when TEAM FIGHT managers came to me to offer help and advice in any way they could to help with my personal endeavor. And I have taken part in it first hand while helping TEAM FIGHTers and cancer survivors through the Half Full Triathlon on a cold, wet, dreary, and amazingly uplifting day. TEAM FIGHT supports all its athletes, from those who stand on the podium, to those who cross the finish line last. On TEAM FIGHT no one is ignored and everyone is SUPPORTED.

Why Joshua “Yoshi” Wilkins Biked...

By participating in the 4K for Cancer, I chose to define myself in a new way. No longer would I just be a cancer survivor, but a cancer survivor who gave back to the community. I have always loved cycling, but I took a leap of faith and decided to take what is considered one of the ultimate adventures for a cyclist: to cross this amazing country of ours by the power of my own blood, sweat, tears, and gears. It changed my life, as an adventure should change you. However, the 4K for Cancer did even more, by positively affecting all the many survivors we met along the way, and providing funding for many more young adults struggling with cancer than we could ever meet in person. I found a new family in my 4K team, one that supported me, picked me up when I fell, and pushed me when I was struggling. I am proud to be a part of this family; more proud than I have ever been of anything in my entire life. Some of the hardest and toughest days I've ever had were spent on the 4K. However, those struggles gave me strength, and because of all those trials and tribulations together we can now provide support for so many young adults going through cancer who could use a little family right now.

changing lives

Julie Lanahan

Julie Lanahan, mother of four, was diagnosed with Stage 2A Breast Cancer in March of 2011. She began her chemotherapy in April of 2011 and finished radiation in October. By July of 2012, Julie was at her first training session with UCF's Cancer to 5K program. She completed her first 5K as part of the Baltimore Running Festival in October 2012 and is currently training to participate as part of a relay in UCF's Half Full Triathlon. Julie joined the UCF Team as an employee in June 2013.

"I could always rely on [UCF's] positivity and strengthening message to get me through my many surgeries, six rounds of chemotherapy and many weeks of radiation and on to the next soccer game or Girl Scout meeting. I am proud to say that I did not have to miss out on life as I feared, but lived life even fuller."

Trevor Bynoe

Trevor was diagnosed with gray-zone lymphoma in November of 2009. He found the Ulman Cancer Fund after completing his treatments and was grateful to be able to connect with other individuals who had been affected by cancer as young adults. Trevor is an active member of The Board of Young Adult Advisors (BOYAA) and has participated in the Cancer to 5K program as a race sherpa.

"Most of all, I appreciate the organization's effort to raise awareness of young adult cancer issues in the community and constantly pushing to raise funds for advocacy and support services."

changing lives

Tom Backof

In 2010, Tom was diagnosed with non-Hodgkins lymphoma after having emergency surgery to remove a 4.5-pound tumor from his chest. As a young adult, he struggled with the impact cancer had on his life, but he found the support he needed at the Ulman Cancer Fund. Tom has completed the Cancer to 5K and 4K for Cancer programs, and is an avid UCF supporter.

"Cancer was a turning point in my life. It certainly had its negative moments (and months). However, with the help of the Ulman Cancer Fund, it has been an overwhelmingly positive part of my life. Discovering my new normal with help from Ulman has been eye opening and inspirational."

Jasmine Cooper

Jasmine Cooper was diagnosed with Acute promyelocytic leukemia at the age of 18. She found the Ulman Cancer Fund after meeting one of our patient navigators while she was completing her chemotherapy. She signed up for UCF's Cancer to 5K program after looking for ways to get healthier after treatment and has since completed two 5K races.

"The people at the race and those who helped run the Cancer to 5K program always made me feel as though I was more than a cancer patient. They made me feel like a person training for a race. The races also have given me my self-esteem back. They showed me I could do anything if I work hard enough."

Kelly Schwab

With Special Thanks...

Kelly Schwab led the design of this Annual Report while serving as our Multimedia Mission Awareness Intern for the summer of 2013.

Kelly is a young adult affected by cancer. Her mother was diagnosed with breast cancer during Kelly's junior year of high school, and she is thankfully now celebrating her third year cancer free. After Kelly's mom was diagnosed, UCF helped Kelly and another student sponsor a teen support group, and then Kelly interned with UCF that summer. Since going off to college at High Point University in North Carolina, Kelly stayed in touch and was very excited for the opportunity to come back and intern once again.

Kelly is a total rock star and we are so grateful for her passion and dedication. Thank you, Kelly!
